REGIONAL TRAINING OVERVIEW

Burned Vessels: Hands-On Training for Marine Fire Investigation Professionals

Hosted by the International Association of Marine Investigators

The International Association of Marine Investigators (IAMI), in partnership with the Louisiana State Fire Marshal's Office, proudly presents an intensive Regional Training Seminar (RTS) focused on Practical Marine Fire Investigations. This hands-on course will take place October 13–15, 2025, at the Louisiana State Fire and Emergency Training Academy in Baton Rouge, LA. Space is limited to 100 participants.

This highly specialized training is designed for professionals in law enforcement, fire service, insurance, marine surveying, and related investigative roles. Attendees will conduct real-world examinations of previously burned recreational and commercial vessels to assess burn patterns, determine origin and cause, identify signs of tampering or fraud, and apply advanced fire investigation techniques in a marine-specific context.

Participants will:

- Analyze actual case scenarios and vessel burn sites
- Practice evidence documentation and scene preservation
- Explore fire behavior in vessel environments
- Collaborate across disciplines to evaluate investigation strategies

This seminar bridges theory with practice, offering critical experience you can't replicate in a classroom. Don't miss this opportunity to enhance your investigative capabilities alongside leading experts in marine fire investigation.
